

VANITY FAIR

A REAL-LIFE
MURDER MYSTERY
BY JOHN GRISHAM

Yes, Suri, She's Our Baby!

WORLD EXCLUSIVE: A 22-PAGE TOM CRUISE-KATIE HOLMES FAMILY ALBUM

BY ANNIE LEIBOVITZ AND JANE SARKIN

OCTOBER 2006/$4.50 U.S.
WWW.VANITYFAIR.COM

TARALLUCCI E VINO
15 East 18th Street

ZIBETTO ESPRESSO BAR
385 Sixth Avenue

Caffè Talk

In Italy "bar" and caffè are interchangeable words. In Rome alone there are 8,000 bars, and every major street and piazza has a few of them. The typical Italian bar—a brilliant institution that is almost unknown in this country—is a place for coffee (usually standing, al banco), a snack, or a quick drink. C.E.O.'s stand next to street sweepers and share the same few minutes for espresso, conversation, or solitude. Why this form of establishment has never taken hold in New York is a mystery, since it is perfect for a society on the go. But New York, until Starbucksification, was a diner-and-deli-coffee city with a lot of catching up to do on the civilized coffee-drinking front. There is still a long way to go, but Italophiles can now find some authentic Italian bars in Manhattan. These listed are among the best and the most true to the Italian way.

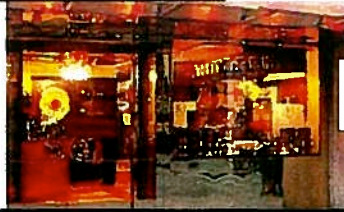

—MATT TYRNAUER

VIA QUADRONNO
25 East 73rd Street

SANT AMBROEUS
259 West 4th Street

BOTTEGA DEL VINO
7 East 59th Street

PHOTOGRAPHS BY JOHN CUMBE (LAND (BEATRICE INN), SQUIRE FOX COFFEE BAR), (EXCEPT BOTTEGA DEL VINO), PATRICK DEWITT (IAN F. VIGNY)

OCTOBER 2006